

Background

Pershing is looking for a talented and hardworking audiovisual design engineer and consultant to join our team! We work on a wide variety of AV/IT projects for government, corporate, medical, higher education, and financial customers around the world. Our projects include the design of conference and collaboration spaces, video and audio production environments, command and control centers, studios, restaurants and entertainment venues, and probably some unusual spaces and systems neither you nor we have thought up yet.

We need someone who is highly motivated to learn new software and is interested in the latest tech, can explain complex problems and solutions to a wide range of audiences, and pays attention to all the little details.

Location

Pershing is a fully virtual company with no physical office location. This position is a work-from-home position, however we are looking for someone in the northeast, located between Washington D.C. and New York.

Responsibilities

At Pershing, your responsibilities would be to turn client ideas and requirements into realities. To do that, you might be involved in:

- Requirements gathering and consulting efforts
- Design charrettes
- Developing consulting briefs and programmatic documents
- Developing bid packages, including full drawings and specifications
- Collaboration with both Pershing folks and external teams, including engineers, designers, programmers, architects, and manufacturers
- Managing multiple projects and responsibilities
- Building mockups of systems and ideas in drawings, presentations, and occasionally Legos

Qualifications and Experience

Required

- Any length of experience or education in AV or a related field
- Bachelor's Degree (in anything really - we have quite the assortment here)
- Independently motivated and able to work under deadline

Bonus Points

- Master's Degree or higher
- Experience with and proficient in AutoCAD and Revit
- CTS, CTS-D, CTS-I, or RCDD
- CCT, CCNA, CCNP, or CCDE
- Experience configuring and commissioning AV and IT systems

Benefits

Pershing offers a competitive assortment of benefits, including fully covered healthcare, dental, and vision insurance, life insurance, 401(k), home office setup stipend, and more.

Applying

If you're interested, please send a cover letter and resume to jobs@pershingtech.com.